

As a feminist woman, I am always highly aware of the importance of the work that groups such as yours do.

In regards to your questions:

1. I will take the Women's Aid's Pledge for this General Election. I have Tweeted my support of this (@KirstyJonesNGP). I will Hear Her, See Her and Support Her, if I were to be selected as an MP and I ensure I do this as part of my work as a children's nurse currently too.

2. As the only woman on the ballot paper of Nottingham North, I think I will have a bit more of an insight into what is needed to defend women's rights and reduce the financial, social and political inequalities still present in society. As a Green Party candidate, I am proud of the fact that feminism is an inherent part of our politics. We have produced a Manifesto for Gender Equality for this General Election which you can find here:

I hope you can see that these measures would help to create a more equal society.

I hope I have provided a sufficient response to your questions. If there is any way I can support you any more, please let me know.

I wish you all the best in the essential work you do.

Thank you,
Kirsty Jones.
